Judge Harrison Corrects Statement.

Judge Harrison has made a statement in which he says there was an error in the report of his remarks to the Strother jury at Culpeper at the close of the trial. Judge Harrison is considered one of the ablest jurists in the State and his instructions in the Strother case were approved by the ablest lawyers of the State. It is now the general opinion that Judge Harrison will fill the first vacancy that may occur upon the bench of the Supreme Court of Virginia. Judge Harrison's remarks to the jury were as follows: "You have listened to the evidence with scrupulous care; you have been assisted by able and eloquent representatives of the Commonwealth and the defense to reach a righteous verdict. I know you to be men of character and purpose and the verdict is in accordance with the dictates of your conscience. This is all the court could ask, and with it the court is satisfied."

INVOLVES ANTI-PASS LAW.

Washington, March 18.—If a motion made in the Supreme Court of the United States today by Attorney General Bonaparte is granted the court will soon consider the question of the effect of the Interstate Commerce law on transportation contracts made prior to the enactment of the law.

The question arises in connection with the case of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company vs. E. R. Motley, which the Attorney General, at the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission, moved to advance on the docket. Motley and his wife were injured on the road 40 years ago, and the company settled with them for free transportation on its lines so long as they might live. After complying with this agreement for years the company recently sought relief through the courts on the ground that to continue to issue passes to Motley and his wife involved a violation of the Interstate Commerce law.

The case was tried before Judge Evans, of the Federal Court, sitting in the Western district of Kentucky, who, holding that the law could not supersede a contract, decided against the railroad company. The court took the motion to advance under advisement.

MR. EDITOR: I notice in your last issue an article in reference to the new school building. I am in favor of giving to our children all the educational advantages possible. As has been said education is something that should be as free as possible and every child should be given as much as it is willing to cart away. I confess that I was surprised at your statement that a new school building is to be located near the railroad at a point where there are frequently as many as two or three freight trains waiting for a passenger train. I couldn't believe that you were opposed to a school building, but the statement that a School Board composed of intelligent gentlemen should select such a location it seems to me is a reflection upon that Board. I have heard it said that there is no other location to be had. Is it possible that a town which but a few short months ago aspired to be the seat of a State Normal School has but one location suitable for a school building and that location is near the railroad crossing in close proximity to cattle pens, fertilizer warehouses, lumber yards etc? I can scarcely credit such statements.

Again you say that it may cost from ten to twelve thousand dollars and that a plan has already been adopted. Will you kindly state whether a town the size of ours, already in debt $20,000 for water works and $5,000 to cover the blunder of a former councilman in trading one school building for another which was not so good, gets the authority to place upon the town another debt of thousands of dollars without the consent of the people?

Heretofore it was necessary to secure that consent before the town could issue bonds, for a school building or water works. Has the present school trustees authority to borrow thousands of dollars without the vote of the town? If they have is it wise or to them so large a sum in erecting a building at a place to which the majority of the citizens have serious objections?

I would suppose that you have authority for the statement, that our school trustees have taken such action as I have not heard it contradicted, but it really seems to me that if the Board could hear the anathemas of a number of our ladies when they are informed that it will become necessary to send their small children across the railroad to school they would certainly hesitate before building upon such a location.

LAYMEN'S RESOLUTIONS. In the morning session on Saturday the laymen met in special session, and amidst much enthusiasm and earnestness adopted a number of resolutions:

(1) To increase the salaries of pastors. (2) To see that all assessments are raised in full. (3) To assist the pastor in all of his church work. (4) To educate the people along the lines of more liberal giving.

Jamestown Show and Hotel Rates. We observe that the Norfolk newspapers are pretty lively after the railroads about rates charged visitors to the Jamestown Exposition. That is all right and shows due vigilance as far as it goes. But the fares on the railroads are a bagatelle compared with the charges for board and lodging at the hotels. There is a well-defined impression that the people are to be heavily mulcted by these charges—in fact, it is known that the hotels propose to fix exorbitant rates for the occasion. We have scarcely seen a word about this matter in our seaside contemporaries, except that the New York News papers have stated the facts which their contemporaries either suppressed or minimized. Now this is a thing worth looking into. The people up this way, as everywhere else within convenient reach, want to go to the Exposition and they want to spend more than one day there. If, however, the Norfolk and outlying hotels are going to charge excessive rates, as reported and believed to be the case, the attendance will be limited to the strictly well-to-do and to such persons as can run down and stay a very short time. Now, we suggest to our usually wide-awake contemporaries, who certainly have the good of the cause at heart, that they "talk right out in meat" about hotel rates, and not devote all of their vigils and energies to the railroads.—Danville Register.

The school building is in fearful condition. Who is to blame?

The meetings are still in progress and will continue until Saturday noon. A very interesting program which was published last week, has been prepared. From the attendance at the first session it is probable that the capacity of the large church will be taxed to accommodate the large audiences.
